Very little was accomplished by the erences, and finally Palucah withdrew from them, in order not to be needed later on to secure what we want. One of the greatest stumbling blocks was a proposed amendment to make the terms of all mayors of second class cities begin and end at the same time, which would result in holdover terms for some of the present second class mayors. Mayor Yeiser will hold his office until 1995, no matter what class Paduach is in, and under the cond class charter mayors now have to be elected in 1903, leaving a two year discrepancy that there is no way to obviate. As there is naturally strong opposition from politial oppon-ents to Mayor Duncan of Lexington and the mayors of Covington and Newport having an extra two years added to their terms, for Paducab and her friends in the legislature to support the hold-over proposition, adding two years to his term, would result in opother desired changes. Paducah therefore withdrew from the conference of representatives of second class cities, and will have the Judge Lightfoot and submitted to the legislature, independent of the second

The bill to transfer Paducah to the cond class will pass the legislature and is not affected by the conference that were held to discuss amendmen to the second class charter.
